The Best Wetsuits for 2007

Read what the folks at Triathlete magazine has to say about our all new Frequency wetsuit.

“Nineteen’s new top-of-the-line suit will be an underground hit (but not for long), as Nineteen has done all the right things. The suit debuts new Speedline SCS Nanoskin rubber, which boasts 20-percent less drag resistance than existing SCS Nanoskin. Aside from the rubber, the suit is a totally new cut, featuring the new Wingspan System, with an ultra-thin (and ultra-flexible) 1.5 mm panels that extends from the lats to the lower back, making for a suit with an open overhead reach. And don’t forget the new PT buoyancy panel at the hips, designed to promote an efficient downhill body position in the water.”

Triathlete magazine also spoke about our new for 2007 Limited Edition “Pink Ribbon” Frequency wetsuit.

“The limited-edition Pink Ribbon Frequency (pictured) features pink accents. What’s different (and amazingly cool) is that Nineteen will donate $20 from every Pink Ribbon suit sold to the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation (komen.org). You can see more about this promotion at swininpink.com.”

As seen in the “2007 Wetsuit Buyers’ Guide” in the February 2007 issue of Triathlete magazine.
